Maria:

What do you wish to do?

I thought that I recalled an important RA authority for the Exide situation and checked the 2010 Pb monitoring FRN that contains the following paragraph, and that indicates that the RA can require additional (new) TCEQ monitoring, or even everyday sampling at current monitors, at a closed facility - see the last regional administrator reference of this FRN that follows:

(c) The EPA Regional Administrator may require additional monitoring beyond the minimum monitoring requirements contained in paragraphs 4.5(a) and 4.5(b) where the likelihood of Pb air quality violations is significant or where the emissions density, topography, or population locations are complex and varied. EPA

Regional Administrators may require additional monitoring at locations including, but not limited to, those near existing additional industrial sources of Pb, recently closed industrial sources of Pb, airports where piston-engine aircraft emit Pb, and other sources of re-entrained Pb dust.

OAQPS often adds these sort of items at the end of a FRN - see the 2008 Pb NAAQS FRN for the following reference from end of the 2008 Pb NAAQS FRN which was subsequently elaborated upon (above):

(c) The EPA Regional Administrator may

require additional monitoring beyond the
minimum monitoring requirements contained in 4.5(a) and 4.5(b) where the likelihood of Pb air quality violations is significant or where the emissions density, topography, or population locations are complex and varied.

Be aware that Erik seems to recall a potential new Rodman monitoring site location - see the Mapquest and Google aerial photographs left on your desk!
